“Printing Services is a family-owned business that my father started and I took over several years ago. As my time became stretched between running that company and other family business interests, I decided to sell the printing business. An industry friend suggested I consider Dominion Partners, which handled the sale of his company and had relevant experience. They ran a confidential professional process and found an ideal buyer in Allegra, which is combining its operations with ours to create an excellent platform for continued growth. I would highly recommend Dominion to others.”
